

Winter Percussion Handbook

Nate Wilson, Ensemble Director

I. Introduction

Being a success at any worthwhile undertaking requires focus, ambition, teamwork, and determination. The absence of any one of these things makes the learning process very difficult. There are an incredible variety of techniques and terminology to master. Even for veterans, there is always something new to learn. There are many levels of achievement to grow into, and that requires time and practice.

For those new to the indoor percussion activity, being in this ensemble requires things of its members that are not asked of other musical groups. For instance, the amount of coordination needed to put together a coordinated show requires increased time and dedication from the performers. Musical demands are also increased, as this activity is all about percussion and there is no band or color guard to take the judges' eyes off what we are doing. Further, the physical requirements of playing instruments while moving (for battery) are quite demanding. All percussion students come to realize this, and there is an adjustment phase that includes the building up of physical and mental stamina.

On the other hand, Winter Percussion offers its performers extraordinary opportunities for teamwork, camaraderie, and memorable experiences that students in other groups may not get. Yes, we work very hard, but by the time the season is over, you won't want it to end. If you ever need evidence of the amazing experiences students have in percussion, just ask.

II. Fundraising and Fees

Fundraising is imperative for the band program to provide a truly meaningful and educational experience for the students. It is critical that each and every family participate in fundraising efforts with the MRHS Band Boosters. We do recognize that fundraisers can be time consuming and a lot of work. If a family does not wish to participate in individual fundraisers, payment directly to the Band Boosters is an acceptable way to fulfill the needs of the program.

We continually strive to strike a balance between a reasonable budget and wanting to provide the absolute best experience for our students. Membership in this year's ensemble will cost $425.

This is due according to the following schedule:

Dec. 3rd (1st rehearsal) - $85

Dec. 17th - $85

Jan. 23rd - $85

Feb. 20th - $85

Mar. 20th - $85

Boosters will be present at each of these rehearsals to collect checks for fees. Many of our families, however, choose to participate in our fundraising programs so that little or no money comes out of pocket. If monies exist in your fundraising account on the due date, those funds can be used to pay for the ensemble fees. Otherwise, fees must be paid on each due date, with checks made out to "MRHS Band Boosters".

It is never our desire to price anyone out of Winter Percussion. We have a variety of fundraisers in place to help families fulfill their financial obligation. If we need to defer or spread out payments, or make other arrangements for financial assistance, please contact Mr. Wilson or Mr. Evans directly. It is never okay, though, to simply not contribute financially to the success of the program—we cannot function that way.

Members who have not paid their fees, or made any other arrangements, by each due date will be given one “grace” rehearsal. After that, the student in question will not be allowed to rehearse or perform until the fees are paid. After three missed rehearsals for this reason, members will be dismissed from the ensemble.

III. Rehearsal Expectations

General expectations for rehearsals:

- Arrive early and be fully set up before start time. Please remind your parents to get you here with enough time to do so.
- Have all music, drill and other materials through the entire season. This is simple to do, but the lack of it affects rehearsals and performance quality immensely.
- Be cooperative and professional. Our rehearsals will almost always be run the same way, and the rehearsal process will become habit quickly. Each member is expected to establish good attendance/transportation habits and effective rehearsal routines that will help us achieve our goals.
- Be still, quiet, and calm during verbal communication. Listen to comments, follow the instructions, and things will run very smoothly. Otherwise, a lot of time that we cannot get back will be wasted.
- Raise your hand to speak; no blurting out.
- Have an open mind, be patient, move fast, and work hard.
- Once something has been complimented, lock it into memory and perform it at that level or higher from that point forward.
- Always perform at a level in rehearsal that you would want to do in a performance. Form good habits, don't rehearse bad ones!

IV. Attendance

Attendance is the biggest make-or-break element for us. Without 100% attendance at every rehearsal, we can achieve only average results at best, and average isn't good enough. Any absence, legitimate or not, cuts our productivity in half, because we have to spend twice the time learning the material. Please keep this in mind as you plan out appointments and other potential conflicts.

Absences for legitimate illnesses or circumstances beyond your control should be communicated as soon as is possible. These instances should be limited to those that are absolutely necessary, such as: funerals, student illness with a doctor's excuse, traffic accident, etc.

Non-legitimate absences include: homework, parties, dinners out, dates, relationship issues, and social events that can be scheduled around our rehearsal schedule. School work is extremely important, but winter percussion typically rehearses only two nights per week, and students must manage time well outside of rehearsal so their grades don't suffer.

V. Calendar

The full Winter Percussion calendar is available online at sites.google.com/a/adams12.org/mrhs-winter-percussion/. This calendar is as detailed and correct as we can make it at this time. Any changes made to the calendar will be announced as far in advance as possible. As we get closer to the competition season, more information will be added to those events on the calendar, such as exact performance times.
